

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Launch of Nonvoice, the World's First 5G App Agency

July 7th 2020, New York, USA – Simon Buckingham, mobile application specialist and founder of Mobile Streams and Appitalism has today launched his latest venture, Nonvoice Agency. Nonvoice Agency is the world's first 5G network of specialist agents dedicated to sourcing the best 5G consumer and enterprise apps from around the world as well as assisting with their launch to market.

Nonvoice Agency connects 5G application developers with investors and distribution channels with the aim of accelerating adoption and deployment of these apps via an ecosystem of key parties dedicated to the 5G value chain. With the need for 5G and its high-speed network capabilities growing daily, there is great benefit in having a dedicated agency with strong connections to facilitate this process.

“This year has shown more than ever the need for new and advanced applications that only 5G can provide. Our agency is uniquely positioned to help, identify, fund and nurture the most beneficial of these ideas in order to bring them to market in the shortest time possible and to users around the world,” explains founder, Simon Buckingham.

Some of the clients already benefiting from Nonvoice Agency's unique range of services are: GIZER, the competitive gaming infrastructure that make games social with feature rich gameplay; PLOTAVERSE, a suite of dynamic photography solutions designed to help content creators and brands/marketers make engaging special effects and animations for stills and video and; VENIO, the revolutionary new nano consumer lending app for developing markets and unbanked consumers currently launching in the Philippines.

Nonvoice's clients gain access to the Agency's extensive global mobile telecommunications distribution network that spans North America, South America, Asia, India, Africa, the Middle East and Europe. In addition, the agency has strong relationships with large Internet companies such as Amazon, Apple, Google, Facebook and Microsoft as well as major local Internet companies in China.
