Seasoned TMT Strategist, Andrew Mendoza, joins the Nonvoice Agency

February []th 2021, Florida, USA – since launching in July 2020, Nonvoice, the world’s first 5G app agency has had an influx of interest from industry professionals interested in becoming agents. The latest signing is none other than well-known TMT Strategist, Andrew Mendoza. Andrew is also Chief Strategy Officer of Inception VR which developed the leading Augmented Reality app, Bookful.

As well as his experience with Inception VR, Andrew has an extensive career in Strategy and Business Development for multinational corporations with a focus on media, tech, telecoms and digital. Andrew consulted for blue-chip companies over 20 years with Accenture and OC&C Strategy Consultants, and for the last ten years has had a much more entrepreneurial emphasis which has included co-founding, investing and advising many content and technology start-ups as well as working with media and entertainment companies on issues of digital strategy and proposition development.

Andrew Mendoza, Nonvoice adviser and agent, explains: “Through my role with Bookful, I was able to see first-hand how the Nonvoice Agency is uniquely positioned to assist with an app’s success including global distribution deals, investment and relationship building etc. Having had success with our own app I am now delighted to be working with Nonvoice and in assisting the team, telcos and app developers around the world in any way I can”.

“It is a compliment to me and the team at Nonvoice that Andrew has agreed to join us as an adviser. His vast experience and expertise will be invaluable with more and more app developers reaching out to us for assistance with their products,” added Simon Buckingham, Founder and CEO of Nonvoice.

The Nonvoice agency is made up of industry professionals based around the world with the aim of finding new and innovative apps for the agency to represent as well as working together to enhance the success of current agency clients. Nonvoice currently has 40+ agents across Europe, North America, South America and Asia Pacific.
