Nonvoice announces strategic partnership with innovative Fintech firm Greenfence Consumer

March 16th 2021, Florida, USA – The world’s first 5G app agency, Nonvoice Agency, announces today their latest strategic partnership with Greenfence Consumer, the fintech company whose revolutionary platform transfers value and purchasing power to mobile phone users. The innovative Greenfence Consumer platform is currently digitizing the popular but often complicated coupon market using mobile phones.

Coupons are popular the world over both for companies looking to attract new customers and customers looking for discounted pricing on their favorite items. Traditionally, coupons would be printed and posted to the customer. Customers would then cut out the offer and take it to the store to redeem the discount. Greenfence Consumer simplifies this process by their “load to phone number” model which transfers the value of the coupon to the users’ mobile phone number which can simply be redeemed directly at the point of sale.

In addition to being more convenient and user-friendly, Greenfence Consumer’s platform that is backed by Blockchain, provides added security and protection from common coupon fraud. Unlike some services powered by Blockchain, Greenfence Consumer’s platform does not use cryptocurrency. The coupons received by the mobile phone customer are used for the transaction at the point of sale. This also makes the service accessible to the unbanked or underbanked who may not have a bank account but can still use the service simply through their mobile phone.

Commenting on the partnership, Jonas Hudson Founder of Greenfence Consumer said: “We have used our platform in successful trials with mobile operators in the US and we are now looking to expand our service around the world. Nonvoice provides us with direct access to operators thanks to their existing relationships and network. This will greatly reduce the time it would take for us to build these relationships from scratch and rollout our service. Nonvoice can help us scale globally in the shortest time possible”.

“We are delighted to have Greenfence Consumer joining the agency. Services such as the one developed by Greenfence Consumer are a game changer for the industry. We look forward to having this service to add to their service offering,” explains Founder and CEO of Nonvoice Agency, Simon Buckingham.

Nonvoice has agents around the world who build and cultivate relationships with operators in their regions. Through this network they offer the “Best in Class” 5G apps such as the solution from Greenfence Consumer that are fully verified and able to be immediately uploaded to their platforms.
