Popular AR/VR Geolocation mobile game “Mythical Wars” signs up to Nonvoice Agency

July [] 2021, Florida, USA – the leading agency for 5G apps, Nonvoice, announces today that it has signed-up social media favourite and free2play geolocation mobile game “Mythical Wars” by Slavic Monsters. The new game joins a host of other titles within the agency that include augmented reality (AR) technology.

“Mythical Wars” has been designed to ensure a consistent and ultra-stable latency via mobile edge computing to guarantee the best possible gaming experience for users. Players are able to choose from a wide range of monsters that cover various cultures and mythologies with new monsters being developed and added on a regular basis to ensure that there is something to suit every type of player.

“There is a lot of choice out there for mobile gamers. As fanatical gamers ourselves, we put creativity and usability first. That is why our game is backed by AR to give that full immersive experience that gamers are craving and combining that with the mythical world of monsters which is popular not only in our Slavic culture but all around the world,” explains Marek Maruszczak, Chief Executive Officer of Slavic Monsters.

Nonvoice Agent and AR gaming expert, Jesse Bijl added “through my role at Nonvoice I am constantly on the lookout for top gaming apps that will appeal to our partners. The apps and games that we put forward for selection must meet a strict criterion to guarantee the quality that telecoms know and expect. I am delighted to welcome the team from Slavic Monsters into the Nonvoice family.”

“Mythical Wars” joins a host of AR titles already being represented by the agency such as Reality Clash, XO and the Active Augmented Reality titles from forwARdgame, SCOARR, STACKAAR and SPLASHAAR. All of the apps in the Nonvoice network are available to telecommunications partners around the globe to incorporate into their platforms and to enhance their offering of 5G apps.
